A lot of parents around here are not in tune with their child's education. It's the day and times we live in. It's really sad.

What ways can parental engagement be strengthened at your child's school?

33 responses

Being concern about their child or children behavior, their attendance, their involvement in school activities, their grades and study habits and by assisting with home work and studying. (2)

More communication from the school. As parents we are cut out of the education process.

Give more notice of events

Let the parents know ahead of time before every event wether big or small.
